Wasted away in Coronaville

I have to tell you... I didn't handle this Corona crisis well. I often had weird dreams where I reflected back on some of my recent club activities. In one meeting, I dreamed Bernie Sanders spoke. Politics aside, I was glad to hear him say if elected we could rest assured that... "When he is President he will never allow the FAA to require we put registration numbers on our models". However, we will still have to pay some extra registration fees and taxes. When I woke up, I was terrified to find out he wasn't elected.

In another dream, after his fifteen years as our treasurer, Kent McClain had become the club president. He immediately upgraded our meeting space and committed to keep all current club members dues "considered paid in full" for life so long as no member becomes infected with a current virus in the future, or starts a new one.

I guess all these dreams were the result of having a lot of extra time on my hands, except I still wake up with the same "President Joe".

As you probably know, Bob Heitkamp and some others formed a new jet club out in the desert. They were kind enough to invite me out there. I must say it was great for me... the wind was never a factor and you could land anywhere. However I think they should allow cars and trucks. BJ

Fortunately, some of our members escaped detention and made it to the flying field. Our “roving reporter” (her name will remain anonymous because she was wearing a mask) reported that on one particular day, it rained “Cow-pie Awards” with five crashes in one day.

A noted psychiatrist was a guest speaker at an academic function where a prominent politician happened to appear. He took the opportunity to schmooze the good doctor a bit and asked him a question with which he was most at ease.

'Would you mind telling me, Doctor,' he asked, 'how you detect a mental deficiency in somebody who appears completely normal?'

'Nothing is easier,' he replied. 'You ask a simple question which anyone should answer with no trouble. If the person hesitates, that puts you on the track.'

'What sort of question?' he asked.

Well, you might ask, 'Captain Cook made three trips around the world and died during one of them. Which one?'

He thought a moment, and then said with a nervous laugh, 'You wouldn't happen to have another example would you? I must confess I don't know much about history.' Sadly, they walk among us! And, MORE sadly, hold high offices!!!
